TALISKER™ DISTILLERY

SHIBSIDE MALT DISTILLERY
Five Aches Notice

Distillation is a process of separating a mixture into its components by heating it to a temperature where the more volatile components vaporize and are then condensed back into a liquid. The process is used in a variety of industries, including the production of alcohol, chemicals, and pharmaceuticals.

The distillation process involves heating a mixture in a still, which causes the more volatile components to vaporize. These vapors then rise and are condensed back into a liquid in a condenser. The condensed liquid is then collected in a receiver. The process is repeated until the desired components are separated.

The distillation process is a key step in the production of whisky, as it allows the distiller to separate the alcohol from the other components of the mash. The resulting spirit is then aged in barrels to develop its characteristic flavor and color.

AMERICAN WHITE OAK.
STRONG. PLENTIFUL. AND IT TASTES GOOD TOO.

At just 10% alcohol by volume, it's the perfect choice for those who love a strong, flavorful beer. The oak is a natural preservative, and it's what makes the difference between a good beer and a great one.
